AgriFood Skills Australia in conjunction with Cardinia Shire Council invites you to a short breakfast seminar on sustainability.

More than ever, sustainability is crucial for the survival of your business. It is not just about diagnostics and technical 'fixes' and processes.

Food processors are particularly vulnerable to forecasts of rising costs and changing expectations resulting from climate change. To survive and compete you must think strategically, build relationships and activate your workplace.

Australian food processors face daunting challenges:

- » Sharp rises in energy costs
- » Reduced access to an affordable water supply
- » More regulation demanded by a carbon constrained economy
- » More demanding and discerning 'green consumers'
- » Gaps in the right skills to deal with new challenges

Is your company ready to face the challenges that lie ahead? Is your company robust, efficient, effective and sustainable and will you still be in business in five years?

This focused, interactive seminar will allow you to explore:

- » Cost savings at an early stage
- » Strategies to prepare for change and engage your workforce
- » Ways to minimise the carbon impact/footprint of your supply chain
- » Funding options to support a sustainable business
